1981 Fall Student Activities Calendar

Introduction

The twenty-second edition of the FJC Student Activities Calendar contains a lot of information that will help make your stay at FJC enjoyable.

A complete month by month calendar of most activities that you can see free or at a sizeable discount, the deadlines you need to stay academically abreast, and plenty of room for your own notes, deadlines and happenings.

In addition, there is a complete list of discounts to area movie theatres, bowling lanes, and golf courses.

If you enjoy live theatre and concerts, check out the FJC Artist Series Broadway Season. These events plus other Artist Series attractions supplemented by tickets to the Jacksonville Symphony and other performing arts groups provide you with the best season of entertainment of any college in Jacksonville.

Do you have a talent? Opportunities exist in intercollegiate athletics, the performing arts, FJC's annual fall Talent Variety Show, intramurals, and student organization leadership roles.

How do you get involved? Contact your campus Student Activities office.

FILM INSTITUTE

The FJC Student Activities Program in cooperation with The Film Institute of Jacksonville presents

CINEMA '81

A selected series of fine films, international in scope, many award winners, and many first run films never shown before in Jacksonville.

FJC students and fulltime FJC employees admitted free with I.D.
Kent Campus Auditorium— Tuesdays— 7:30 P.M.

September 15 - "The Marriage of Maria Braun"

The rise of post-war Germany is traced humorously through the eyes of a single-minded woman. Directed by Werner Fassbinder. (1979)

September 22 - "Children of Paradise"

Called the "Gone with the Wind" of art films for its great performances, this French film concerns four men fatally attracted to one woman. (1943)

September 29 - "Wuthering Heights"

A tear jerker and Oscar winner from that greatest of all movie years, 1939. Starring Laurence Olivier and Merle Oberon as the doomed lovers, with David Niven.

October 6 - "Wild Child"

Based on a true 1806 story, Truffaut plays a doctor who treats a child found living in the wilderness. (1970)

October 13 - "Claire's Knee"

A funny exploration of modern morality. A bachelor meets an old girlfriend and becomes obsessed with the knee of the girlfriend's daughter. (1971)

October 20 - "Small Change"

A funny, touching view of childhood as seen in a small French town. Directed by Truffaut. (1976)

October 27 - "Fat City"

The boxing world is the setting for director John Huston's portrait of two dreamers (Jeff Bridges and Stacy Keach). (1972)

November 3 - "Ugetsu"

A Japanese classic. A poor potter caught in civil war falls in love with a beautiful girl, but fantasy intrudes. (1953)

November 10 - "Diabolique"

Known for a shock ending called the most horrifying ever, this French film concerns psychic terror and sexual undertones. (1955)

November 17 - "My Brilliant Career"

Critically acclaimed film about an Australian woman who must choose between her hazy goals as a writer-artist, in the face of expectations of family and friends. Filmed with careful reconstruction of 1900-era times, with unique scenery of Australian wilderness. (1979)

THE GREAT AMERICAN MIME EXPERIENCE

Mime & the MASK

Mime and the Mask is an entertaining and fascinating look at the work of masked performing. The use of masks is a universal concept. Each culture has a tradition of masks which represent its heroes, fools, relationships with natural forces, ancestors, and all key points from birth to death. This evening will include such pieces as the "Whistling Grandmother," based on an American Indian legend, and "Out Of Sorts," a satiric look at the current postal system.

October

sugar babies

Broadway's big and splashy hit musical comedy is a nostalgic return to the fantastic vaudeville-burlesque era. Uninhibited baggy pants comedians! Showgirls galore! Slick dancers and lavish costumes total up to an evening of great entertainment. Nominated for 8 Tony Awards.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 16
and SATURDAY, OCTOBER 17 Ticket price code C

PYGMALION

A Baroque setting of the classic story, Rameau's masterpiece is one of the most brilliant examples of eighteenth-century theatre. Both French and Italian style virtuoso arias are featured, and all the different Baroque dances are demonstrated as the Graces instruct the Statue in the dance after she has been brought to life by Amour. This chamber production by the Concert Royal Baroque Orchestra and the New York Baroque Dance Company is the only touring presentation of eighteenth century opera on original instruments, with period costumes, and choreography based on original sources. (The story of "My Fair Lady" is based upon this 18th century production).

November

The great New Orleans musical that is breaking records in New York and on tour will transform the Civic Auditorium into the legendary Lyric Theatre. The time is the roaring twenties. The music is red hot jazz, sultry blues and spicy ragtime like you've never heard before (1981 Grammy nominee). The people include Big Bertha, Papa Du, Ma Reed, Thelma, and the meanest theatre owner on the circuit. Experience the backstage bickering, the onstage struttin', and singin'. Find out why New York Magazine's John Simon said, "I could easily see it two mo' times!"

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 27

Ticket price Code C

THE SONG IS KERN

A salute to Jerome Kern—a showcase of the composer's prodigious contribution to the country's all-time hit parade. More than 60 songs are included, selected from 50 Broadway musicals and more than 20 Hollywood films. The show includes all the Kern standards: "Ol' Man River," "Smoke Gets in your Eyes," "You Are Live," "The Way You Look Tonight," "Bill," "Look For the Silver Lining," and the magnificent "All the Things You Are." This production was the Asolo mainstage production in Sarasota this summer. It features a full equity cast in a musical extravaganza of singing, dancing, and acting.

TESTING: YOUR LIFE STYLE PROFILE

A quick and easy life style profile test that you complete yourself for yourself. It may give you an indication if your life style is hazardous and high risk, or risky to the point you take unnecessary risks, or it just might confirm that your life style is based on sensible habits and that you have a lively awareness of personal health.

Pick up a free copy at your campus Student Activities office and check out your life style profile.

MONEY MANAGEMENT 101: HOW TO DEVELOP A BUDGET

You got paid Friday and by Monday your pockets are as empty as the icebox. Unlike the peanut butter you'll wolf down for four weeks, your money doesn't stick to the roof of anything. You need a budget, but where to start?

The first thing to do is relax. A budget isn't a straightjacket. It's simply a way to live within your income and still save for luxuries up the road. Once you understand that, you need to sit down and figure out what your total income is and what your expenses are. Mary Quinn, director of the National Foundation for Consumer Credit, suggests drawing a 12-column grid (one column for each month) and listing types of expenses down the side such as rent, car payments, or insurance. For each expense, put a dot in the month when a payment is due. For example, if you have a car payment each month, put a dot in every column next to car payment. The grid will tell you at a glance what your overall yearly expenses look like.

Once you have an overview, figure out what your fixed and variable costs are each month. You already know fixed costs like rent, car payments, or insurance, but pinpointing variable costs like food, clothing, and entertainment can be tougher. Jennifer Weir, financial planner for the Asset Planning Corporation in Knoxville, Tennessee, recommends recording every penny you spend for at least two months. Once you see where your money is going, you'll be able to set reasonable monthly limits for each type of expense. Says Weir, "After you've done this for several months, you internalize it. It's like learning to drive a four-speed. It starts out feeling uncomfortable but gradually becomes an unconscious action."

Now that you know where your money

	JAN	FEB	MAR	APR	MAY
car payment $85	•	•	•	•	•
college loan $63	•	•	•	•	•
rent $250	•	•	•	•	•
gasoline $60	•	•	•	•	•
vet $35		•			•
dentist $35			•
entertainment $60	•	•	•	•	•
clothes $150		•		•
insurance $150			•
groceries $100	•	•	•	•	•
utilities $45	•	•	•	•	•
medical $50				•
car repairs $45		•	•
gen. repairs $35	•	•
vacation $300				•
laundry $25	•	•	•	•	•
phone $50	•	•	•	•	•

has been going, you can decide where you'd rather have it go. One recommended goal is to build at least two months' salary in savings. That will protect you against sudden costs like an asthmatic muffler or a visiting friend who loves to eat out. Weir suggests setting a specific timetable for this goal or any other. "If you just say, 'someday,' that gives you no way to assess if you're progressing, and you won't get there. Once you know how much you need, divide the amount by the number of months you've allowed yourself, and then you can determine how much to save per month."

No one says budgeting is easy, but it does have its own rewards such as peace of mind and a sense of control. Budgeting can also save you from debt, a plight of many new graduates suddenly faced with car payments, an unfurnished apartment, and a psyche attuned to parental comforts. One particularly hazardous trap is buying on credit. Emphasizing that credit payments should total no more than 20 percent of your take-home pay, Quinn adds, "If your friends look better off than you do, don't assume they're not up to their ears in debt—they probably are."

For free brochures on credit and budgeting, call or write the National Foundation for Consumer Credit, 1819 H St. N.W., Suite 510, Washington, D.C. 20006, 202-223-2040.

fjc talent show

If you can sing, dance, play a musical instrument, tell jokes, or have a novelty act, and are currently enrolled as a student at FJC—you may have a place in our show.

Gift certificate prizes of $75, $50, and $25 will be awarded to 1st, 2nd, and 3rd place winners.

Deadline for applying is Monday, November 9 at 5:00 P.M. Contact your campus Student Activities office for an application form and further details.

Show date is Saturday, December 5.

GETTING MARRIED: LEARNING THE ART OF COMPROMISE

"You like tomato and I like tomahto. Potato, potahto, tomato, tomahto. Let's call the whole thing off."
from "Let's Call the Whole Thing Off" by Ira and George Gershwin, 1937.

Lyrics like that don't make a bit of sense until you get married. You can live with the fact he's not a doctor; it's the toenail clippings on the floor that may end the marriage. Yet lots of people are getting married and loving it.

For one thing, it's fun—like one long sleep-over without mom yelling, "Go to sleep!" Here's someone who won't blab your secrets, for whom your wildest dreams—like houseboating down the Mississippi or prairie-hopping in a covered wagon—seem real.

Still, initial adjustments can be tough. Suddenly, when you eat and sleep, how you dress, and what you do are all shared by another person who does those things differently. If your stomach growls at 7 p.m. and he's cooking, you still may not eat until 10. Explains Dr. Jarle Brors, founder and director of the National Institute of Marriage and Family Relations in Springfield, Virginia, "The greatest adjustment is with each other. Be honest with each other about the time you need to be alone or asleep, and then you will find time together."

Friends and family may also need extra care. Friends become sensitive and worry about the future of the friendship, and whether they perhaps should get married, too. Your family may welcome your hubby in or make sure you know your wife isn't good enough, but in any case, they're taking seriously a relationship they once ignored. Claims Clare Whelan Malony, married nine months, "Suddenly I had this whole other family who treated me as blood. Total strangers took me into their lives. If we were just living together, no one would've noticed."

Careers, too, require flexibility, especially when moves or separations are involved. The Whelan Malonys, separated by work this summer, say simply, "We'll just have to do without each other." Yet even when both are home, juggling work and household responsibilities is difficult. Says Clare, "I feel guilty. My schedule is so packed. Larz does so many things that make my life easier." Again, Brors stresses openness. He also notes that quarrels over various issues such as housework, money, and career may mask deeper causes like a need for control or attention. An argument over crumbs on the bed sheet may really mean, "Hey, look this way."

But chin up! You may even begin to like the hats he wears in bed. Says Brors, "One of the greatest pleasures is that you are with one you care for. You can plan and dream and project. Marriage can increase a person's sense of worth and value."

A NEW GYM AT SOUTH CAMPUS

Scheduled completion date — October 1

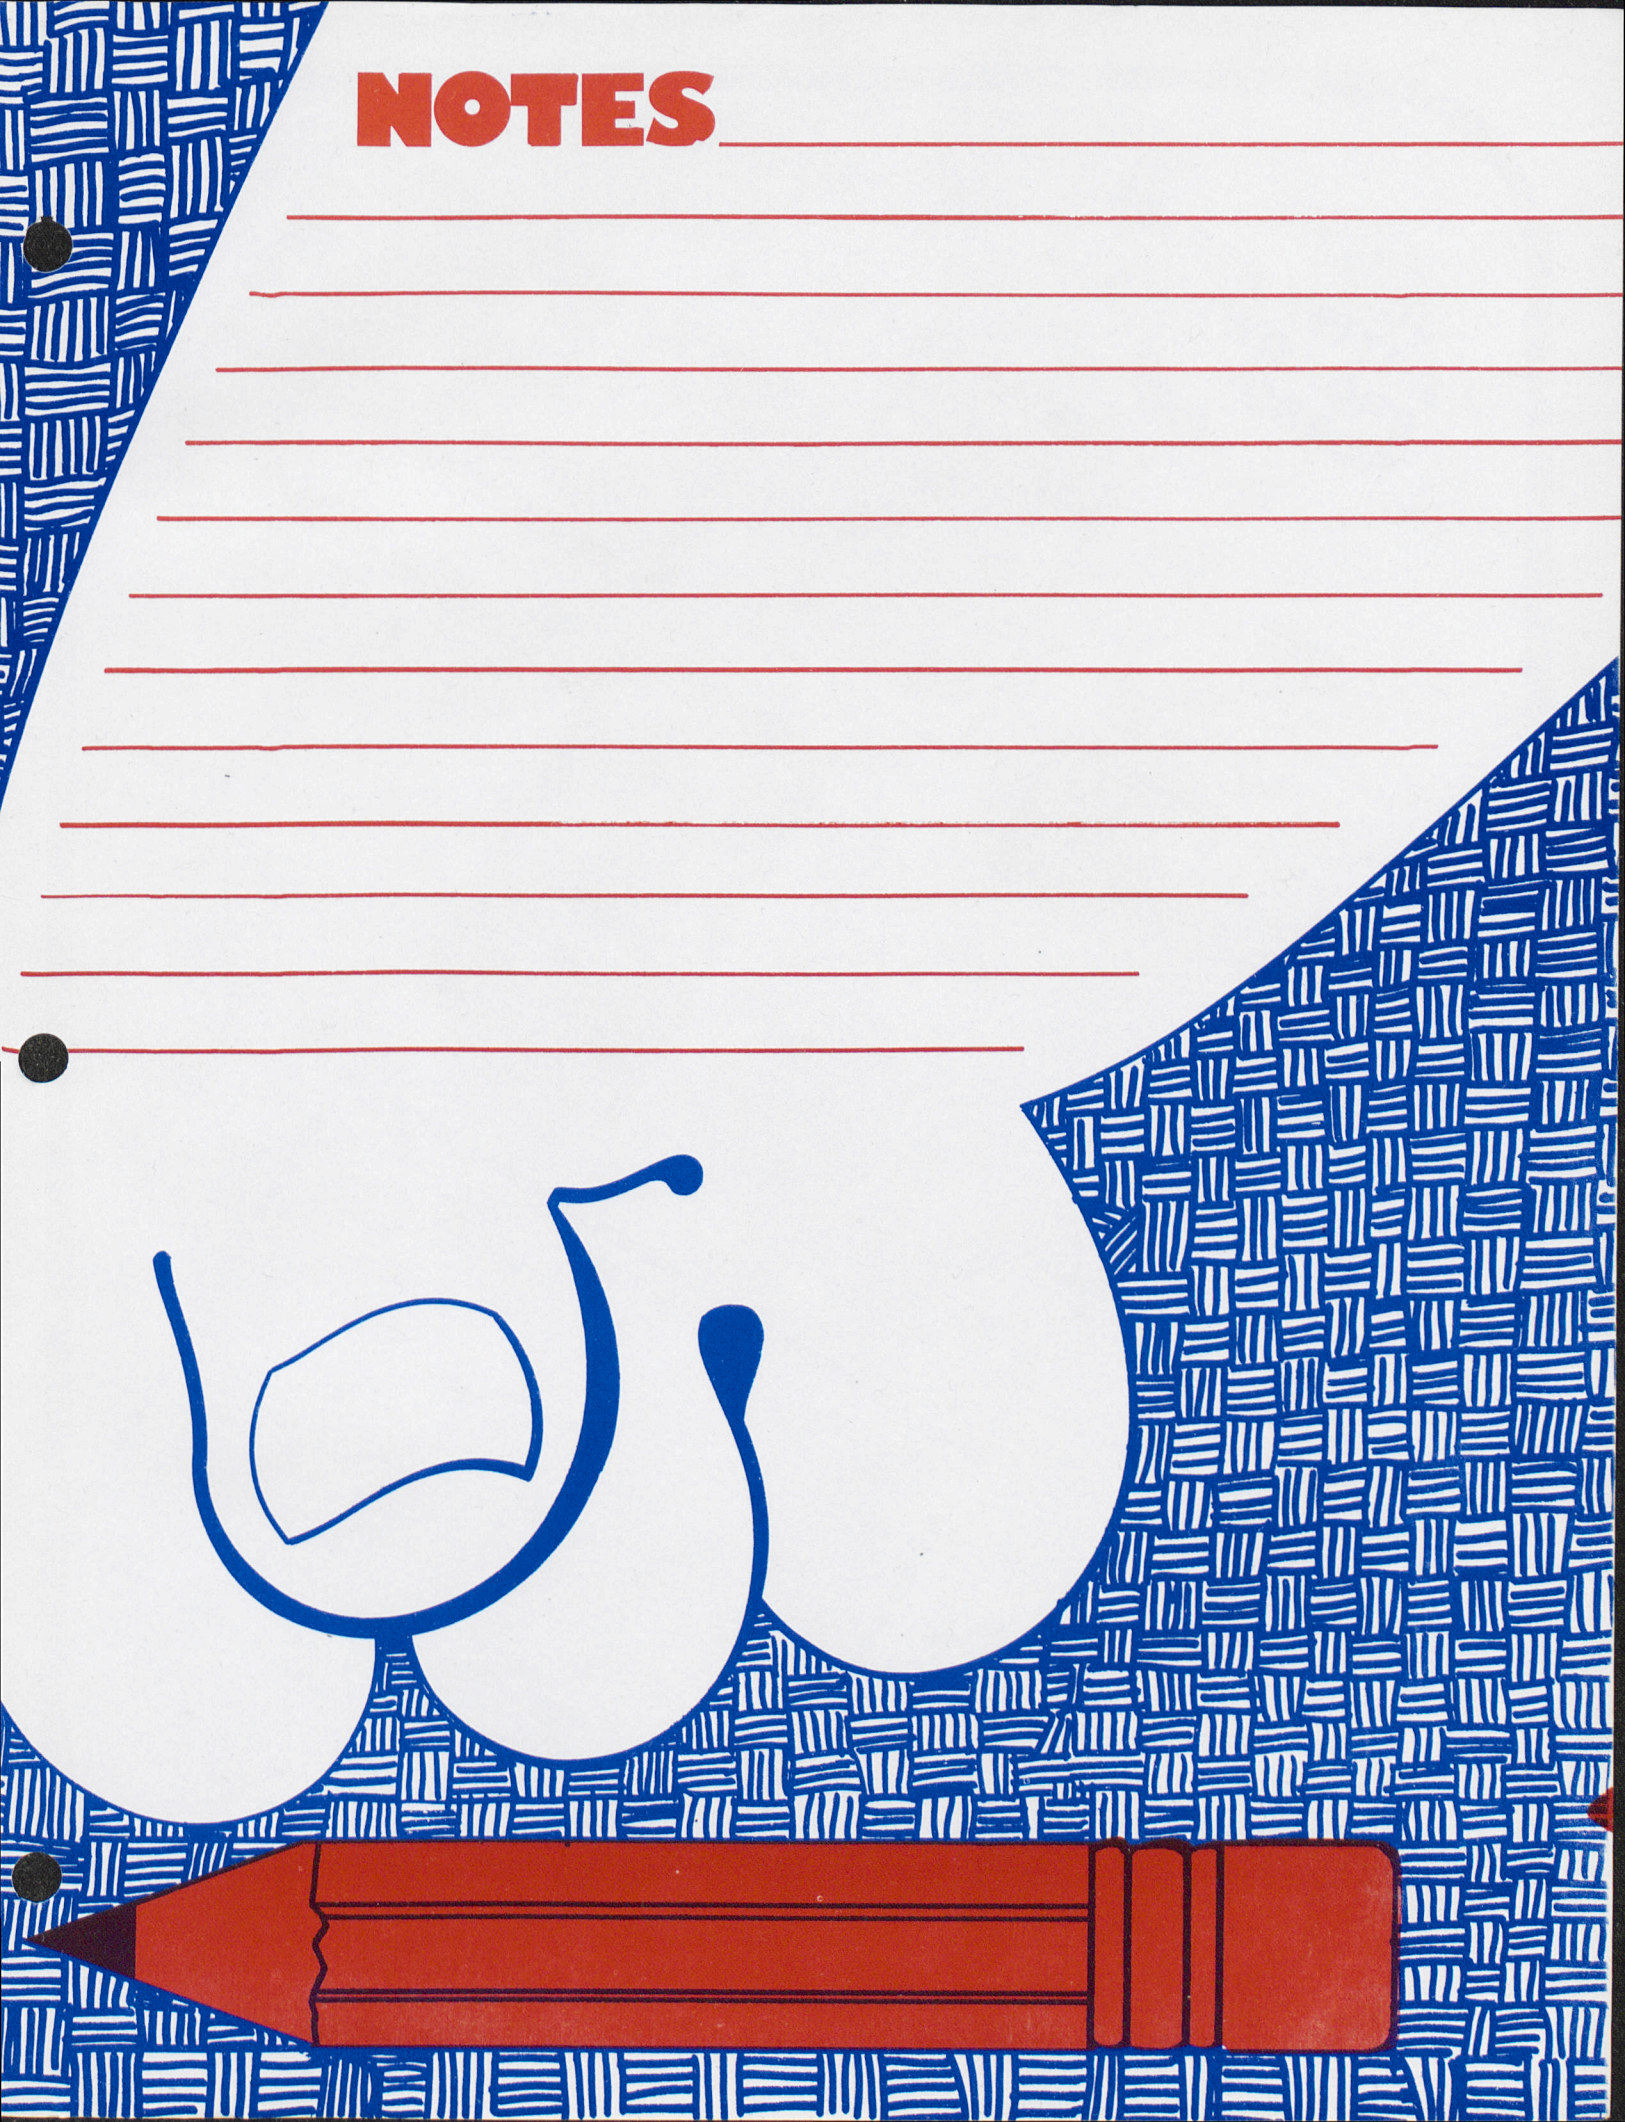

A home for FJC's Basketball and Volleyball "STARS" opens this fall at the South Campus. This new 3.5 million dollar gymnasium joins a growing list of outstanding athletic facilities at FJC, including the new Track and Field complex and revitalized Baseball and Softball diamonds at the North Campus. The South Campus Gym becomes the most modern gym in Northeast Florida. In addition, four new tennis courts have been constructed, and a new center court and additional practice courts are scheduled to be completed by the end of the winter term.

Plan now to see the STARS in action. All home games and matches are listed in this calendar.
