Single Stop at FSCJ is Here

In an effort to promote program completion, FSCJ has partnered with Single Stop, a non-profit organization that connects students to support for their basic needs. Opening this Fall Term, Single Stop at FSCJ will help students as they close unmet financial need gaps through relevant federal, state and local resources. Single Stop will also help our students through social service connections, building on resources to improve their academic and financial stability in the short term, while laying the foundation for their families' long-term economic success.

Faculty and staff are encouraged to participate in upcoming workshops to learn more. The first will be on August 27 at 10 a.m. The workshops will count toward the CRRSA Professional Development Program:

FSCJ CEFE Participants Honored by Florida Council on Economic Education

Twelve local educators received honors from the Florida Council on Economic Education (FCEE) for their commitment to economic and personal finance education through FSCJ's Center on Economic and Financial Education (CEFE).

Through CEFE, Professor of Economics and CEFE Director Susan Reilly, Ph.D. works to empower area educators to lead financial literacy instruction and programs so students are well-prepared to succeed in life beyond high school. The program focuses on three fundamentals for effective economic and personal financial education in schools:

1. Teachers must be knowledgeable about the subject and be able to help students learn how to use basic economic and financial concepts to analyze personal and social issues.
2. Curriculum guides and instructional materials that present economic content at an appropriate level for student comprehension are necessary.
3. Economics must have a central place in the school curriculum so that substantial classroom time is devoted to economics instruction.

Return to Campus Plan

We are entering Phase 4 of our return plan beginning August 23. At this time, we are strongly recommending students, faculty and staff wear masks at all times, regardless of vaccination status. This is especially important when in rooms or buildings when individuals are in close proximity with one another or if you have not been fully vaccinated.
